JOHN WILSON, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Notice to actual settlers on lands of the United States originally withdrawn from market on account of the railroad grant.

Under act of Congress, approved 3d March, 1853, entitled "An act to extend pre-emption rights to certain lands therein mentioned," the pre-emption laws of the United States as they now exist are certain lands therein mentioned, the pre-emption laws of the United States as they now exist are extended over the alternate reserved sections of public lands along the line of the railroad hereinbefore mentioned, where the settlement and improvement were made prior to the final allotment of the alternate sections to the said railroad. There fore, all claims by pre-emption to any of the alternate sections of public lands within the limits originally reserved will attach, if predicated upon settlements made prior to the 4th February, 1853, the date of the final allotment.

Claims within the six miles limits must be proven up at any time before the day herein fixed for the commencement of the public sale, and are to be paid for at the rate of two dollars and fifty cents per acre. Claims outside of the six miles, and within the limits of the original reservation, must be proven up prior to the restoration of said lands to private entry.

RED RIVER RAFT.

Led under former advertisements for proposals having failed to give the bond with surelies as required, proposals for the work are again invited as follows: THE PERSON to whom the contract was award-

as follows:

Proposals will be received until the 20th day of next September for the removal of obstructions to the navigation of Red river (Louisiana) occasioned by the raft, and for keeping the said navigation free from the same for the longest period.

The amount of these proposals united is not to exceed the sum of $100,000.

Each bidder will propose to remove said raft.

The amount of these proposals united is not to exceed the sum of $100,000.

Each bidder will propose to remove said raft, (thoroughly.) and to keep the navigation free from obstruction thereby for a specified period; specifying in his bid the time in which he proposes to complete the removal of the raft, the said time not to be later than the 1st day of June, 1855; and also the number of years, counting from said removal, during which time he binds himself to keep the said navigation free from raft obstruction.

The contractor will be required to give his bond for $20,000, with two good sureties, each for the sum of $10,000, conditioned for the faithful execution of the contract. Each bidder will transmit, at the same time with his proposals, the names of the persons whom he offers as sureties, and a declaration signed by them that they will sign his bond as sureties as above mentioned; and also the certificate of a district judge of the United States for the State in which he resides, that said securities are respectable citizens, and that he considers them worth $10,000 over and above all their debts and liabilities. No bid will be examined unless these conditions shall be complied with.

from her face, and the "Arc of Promise" under each eye, advanced to the witness stand, and each eye, advanced to the witness stand, and commenced, with the greatest volubility, to tell her tale of grievance. During the rendering of her testimony a comical pantomime was being enacted by the prisoner, who would elevate her hands, raise her eyes, toss her head, shake her fist at the witness, and betray sundry other little eccentricities of excitement.

Mrs. O'Brien proceeded, in the rich brogue of Connaught, to detail to the court the troubles and tribulations she had experienced from the hands of the prisoner ever since they had been the joint

The Military System of Great Britain.

In 1805 the British army numbered 200,000 men, a force which was subsequently augmented to 450,000 in 1814, but which is now greatly below that number. Its organization differs from that of any army in Europe—first, by being entirely under the control of Parliament, from the power which that body has over its means of support; second, because no form of conscription exists in England; and third, because efficiers' commissions are purchasable. They were evidently on an excursion, which to them possessed very great importance, and consequently they were attired in their finest and most dashing apparel. One of them wore a dress cut low in the meck—opera style. It did not start from the very "edge of decorum"—as some wag said about the dresses of the ladies at Saratoga—but it left fairly exposed a nicely-turned shoulder and a very grace full neck. England; and third, because efficers' commissions are purchasable. The prices of the altar, strange as it may appear, are established and regulated by law. A lieutenant colonelcy in the Foot Guards (which is the highest rank that can be purchased) is held at £7,250 sterling, and so down to the ensigncy, which costs $1,200. In the Line, the price of the same commissions is £4,500 and £450; but these places are often purchased at much higher rates. This of course only refers to the European army of Great Britain.

The Artillery consists of nine battalions of foot, each of 8 companies, and one brigade of Light Artillery of 7 companies, to which the rocket corps should be added.

There are at present 34 regiments or battalions on home service, one of which is a reserved battalion, (the 23d;) 26 regiments are in India or on the way thither; 5 in New South Wales, Australia, and New Zealand; 7 in British North America; 5 in the West Indies and Burmuda; 14 in the Mediterranean; 7 at the Cape of Good Hope; 2 at Cey-lon; 2 at Mauritius, and 1 at Hong Kong. There are likewise two reserved battalions at the Cape, and one in British North America.

PLEASURE OF LIVING OUT OF TOWN.—A spicy contemporary gives the following graphic account of the pleasures of a "delightful summer residence on Staten Island:"

"How lucky you are to get out of the dust," says your friend, buttoning his coat with a prospect of an avenue of dust up to his home in Thirtieth street. "You've nothing to do but to jump into the boat, and in ten minutes you are as if you had gone a hundred miles off." "Jump into the boat, quotha!" Our friend didn't know what had to jump with us when he proposed this gymnastic evolution. He hadn't seen the list of commissions we brought with us in the morning, and which, by dint of scrambling, panting, and desperate curtailments of business items, we had contrived to convene under the desk in our office. 1. Gimp to match pattern. Thank heaven, this is done! Four times had we lost the beggarly bit of pattern silk. 2. Aconite—all right. 3. Pot of violets and hosts of flower seeds. 4. TRICOPHEROUS, or Medicated Compound, for beautifying, ourling, preserving, reatoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the handsome stranger, readily granted the field in the buse of greater brutaling and the request. The honest tailor was very much at the county and asked for employment. The honest tailor was very much at the county cannot pay to the county. This plan secures the greatest purposed that his journeyman should prefer a chair to the bench. Subsequent events, however, show that he did not long remain ignorance of the amount necessary to make the road by the most zealous advocates of the read. A provision for the county, is ubscription within the limits of the county, is ubscription within the limits of the county, is ubscription within the limits of the county, is ubscription of the friends of the measure; yet if the true effect of such a provision is a time the county, and asked for employment. The honest tailor was very much at the county cannot pay to the company to expend the amount of the subscription within the county, it will be perceived that it is not effect of such a provision is a time the county and the county. This plan secures the greatest purposed that his journel, and a bring the company to expend the amount of the county, it will be perceived that it is not the county. This plan secures the greatest purposed that his journel, and the county is the provision of the county, it will be perceived that it is not the county of the county is a paper. In our opinion, this account by the most zealous advocates of the r citizens will receive at least as much as they have paid in the way of a tax, for provisions, &c., furnished the contractors. While, therefore, it is true that we cannot make the road through the country with our own funds, but we shall be dependent upon the company to furnish the deficiency, it would not be a matter of great importance upon what section of the road our money may be spent, provided our subscription is a guarmay be spent, provided our subscription is a guarmay be spent, provided our subscription is a guarmay winter expedition to see the country under antee that the road shall be made for us. That

As we have been frequently interrogated upon the subject, we will here state, that those who have recently subscribed will have the privilege of deducting their taxes from such subscriptions, provided the measure shall be carried, so that it will in nowise affect the amount, unless their taxes should be more than the amount subscribed by them; in which case they would be increased to the amount of the excess.—Tenth Legion.

"An ugly, bad old woman."

The Duchess, as mother to our Queen, is provided for by the public. She has an annual allowance of £32,000, besides sundry residences rent free. The curious part of the matter is that, while her daughter was heiress presumptive to the crown, (which was a position involving some expense,) the Duchess had £20,000 a year; but when Victoria became Queen, lessening her mam's outlay, the obsequious Melbourne ministry got Parliament to raise it to £32,000—thus showing that the less she had to spend the more she must receive!

It was whispered at the time that Lord Mel-

It was whispered at the time that Lord Melbourne wished to become third husband to the Duchess, who was then aged 51. Nothing came of it, and the lady, now in her 68th year, is not likely to change her condition. She has been a fine woman, with dark eyes and hair, but is now very stout and flabby—known wherever she drives by the immense quantity of rouge with which she bedaubs her cheeks.

A FREE FIGHT—The following is a description of a free fight in Western Virginia, as related by one of the eye-witnesses thereof. Premising that there was but one man struck, in answer to an interrogatory as to who he was, the narrator replies:

FRIGHTFUL DEATH.—Last evening about seven o'clock Garret Autrey, a night hand at the Zinc Works, suffered death by being caught in the machinery. A belt in the stamping room having broken, he went up to the shaft to detach it, and by some accident was caught in the belt, his body wrapped around the shaft, and whirled at the rate of one hundred and eight revolutions a minute. On being discovered, the engine was stopped, the helt and his clothes were cut loose and the body taken down, terribly mangled, and life totally extinct. Coroner William B. Smith was called, and Dr. G. Grant made an examination. One leg was completely torn off, and the whole body was found contused and lacerated in a shocking manand winter expedition to see the country under both aspects.—Philadelphia Ledger, August 25.

A MAGNIFICENT BRIBE .- Accounts from Buenos Ayres state that the amount paid to Commodore Coe and his squadron by the city of Buenos Ayres to abandon Urquiza, and terminate the blockade of the city, was half a million of dollars. Accounts from Montevideo state that there was great dissatisfaction in the camp of the besiegers, and hopes were expressed that well-directed bribes might be effectual in that quarter also. Nothing
